openSUSE.Asia Summit 2015 – Logo design contest is back

August 24th, 2015 by Manu Gupta

Tweet | Like 76 | G+1 24

Preparations for the openSUSE.Asia Summit are rolling. As we are busy prepping ourselves for this big event, we realized that we need a logo for our very own Summit. Following tradition, we are back with the logo contest. We are looking for a logo which best reflects openSUSE and its community in Asia. The contest is open now and ends on 19 September 2015. We will send a "Geeko Mystery Box" as an appreciation for the best logo designed.

The Rules of the Contest are as follows:

1. We will accept only SVG format for original design.
2. Both color and monochrome(black and white) version are required as part of your submission.
3. The elements of your design should reflect the openSUSE community in Asia.
4. The logo should avoid the following things:
    - No brand names or trademarks of any kind.
    - No illustrations that may consider inappropriate, offensive, hateful, tortuous, defamatory, slanderous or libelous.
    - No sexually explicit or provocative images.
    - No images of weapons or violence.

We're pleased to announce that the logo for openSUSE.Asia Summit 2015. The logo comes from Kukuh Syafaat.

Congratulations, Kukuh Syafaat!!!

A very big thanks from the openSUSE.Asia community to all the logo designers for their time and effort, as well as the voters who actively voted for the event. We are able to host this event because of such huge support and contributions. We look forward to see you at the Summit.

openSUSE Conference returns to Nuremberg

February 18th, 2016 by Douglas DeMaio

Tweet | Like 42 | G+1 48

The openSUSE Conference will return to Nuremberg June 22 – 26 and have its conference at a cultural center in the heart of the Bavarian city.

This year's oSC will take place at the Z Bau, which was a former military barracks before being converted into a cultural center in 2014.

Planning is taking place for a social event the date before the conference begins on June 21. The conference will run from June 22 – 26 and June 26 will be a half-day program ending the conference at 2 p.m.

The venue for this year's oSC offers several rooms for hacking, socializing and learning new things about Open Source software. System administrators, developers, Information Technology managers, startups, IT students and professors are expected to attend this year's conference, which will include a SaltStack Summit, OwnCloud Summit, SUSE Labs Summit and a Kolab Summit.

Registration for the event is open. The Call for Papers is open and will close April 15. Public transportation to and from downtown Nuremberg is within 5 minutes and there are several historical sites located near the Z-Bau like the Documentation Center. SUSE's main offices are located in Nuremberg, which is where the company and the openSUSE Project was founded. Nuremberg was also the location for the 2010 and 2011 openSUSE Conference.

The tracks and theme for this year's conference are being discuss by oSC's Program Committee.
